MANSLAUGHTER CASE FACING DRY OFFICER WHO KILLED WOMAN

Coroner's Jury Orders
Arrest; Informer May Face Charge

GENEVA, Ill., April 3.—Accused by a coroner's jury of killing Mrs. Lillian De King "unnecessarily" in a dry raid on her home in Aurora, Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith faced manslaughter charges today.

Eugene Boyd Fairchild, on whose word that he bought liquor from Mrs. De King a search warrant was issued for the fatal raid, also faced possibly perjury charges, the jury holding that his affidavit was false.

Coroner Herman J. Vierke prepared a warrant today for Smith, who is recovering in Elgin from a wound inflicted by Gerald DeKing, 32-year-old son of Mrs. DeKing, after the raid had killed the boy's mother.

Disposition of Fairchild's case awaited results of a conference between State's Attorney George D. Carberry and Assistant Attorney General Charles Hadley, an observer at the inquest for the state.

Repeating his first story that he had bought a pint of moonshine from Mrs. DeKing, he admitted a friend, Philip Johnson, actually obtained the liquor while he (Fairchild) remained in an automobile in front of the DeKing home.

Fairchild said he still is on the payroll of the state's attorney's office as an investigator.

Johnson followed Fairchild to the stand and said he couldn't recall whom he bought the liquor from but was certain it was not Mrs. DeKing. There was a peal of laughter from the spectators when Johnson admitted his memory was hazy.

Joseph De King, husband of the slain woman and himself clubbed by Smith, retold the events of the night. He said he ordered the raiders from his home when they appeared the first time earlier in the evening and was repeating the order when he was clubbed from the rear by Smith who joined the raiding squad on the second visit.

Gerald DeKing, who shot Smith with one of his father's revolvers when he saw his mother fall dead, told in boyish language, about the raid. He remained unshaken when questioned by Nate Aldrich, attorney for Smith. The boy's chief point was that his mother was killed as she sat in a chair and that she did not seize a pistol and threaten Smith as the deputy contended.

Earlier in the day, the jury went to Elgin where they took a statement from the wounded deputy. Smith he said shot Mrs. DeKing when she waved a pistol and cursed.

He said he shot from the hip and thought his gun was aimed at the woman's hand that held the pistol.

SECOND AUTO CRASH VICTIM SUCCUMBS

PORTSMOUTH, O., April 3.—Earle Calvert, 17, son of former Mayor Ralph Calvert, is dead here, the second victim of an automobile accident Saturday night.

Snyder, 19, son of John W. Snyder, president of the Portsmouth Banking Co., was killed when the car driven by William Burke, 17, son of William J. Burke, founder of the Vulcan Corporation, turned over on a curve. Burke and two other passengers were injured slightly.

Seven girl scouts and a scout mistress were injured seriously here yesterday when their automobile turned over after a collision with another machine. They were pulled from under the machine and rushed to a hospital.

The girls were all members of a scout troop at New Boston. Miss Anne Chinn Graham, Lexington, Ky., scout mistress, was driving the machine. The party was en route to camp.

MACK AND KAISER NAMED TRUSTEES

COLUMBUS, O., April 3.—Governor Cooper today sent to the state senate for confirmation the reappointment of Egbert H. Mack of Sandusky and John Kaiser of Marietta as trustees of Ohio State University.

The appointments were announced late yesterday, for morning paper release. Mack's new term will expire on May 13, 1935, and Kaiser's a year later.

The senate was expected to confirm the appointments today.

Co-ed Still Missing

The disappearance of Barbara Pitcher, 18-year-old McGill University student, is still baffling police, while parents' anxiety increases.

SEARCH FOR MISSING PLANE CREW AWAITS WORD FROM RUNNERS

SYDNEY, N. S. W., April 3.—Australian Bushmen were hurrying to the Drysdale River mission today to bring back any reports that might have been received there of four Australian aviators who were forced down somewhere in that region late Saturday night.

The Bushmen, native blacks, were dispatched from the Forrest River mission in the hope Capt. Charles E. Kingsford-Smith, Capt. Charles T. P. Uim, F. H. McWilliams and H. A. Littlefield had landed within striking distance of the mission and either had reached there or had been heard of by the missionaries.

Runners are the only means of communications with the Drysdale River mission, 100 miles from the Forrest River mission, and the hope that they were safe at the mission can be confirmed or abandoned when the runners return.

Alarm for the safety of the four airmen grew steadily as the hours increased since a radio message was received that the fliers were forced to land.

Searching planes from the Port Hedland government station and from Wyndham failed to find traces of the fliers or the plane, and other attempts to search for them were frustrated by severe storms.

The region where the fliers landed is largely unexplored, and is covered with scrub trees and tall snakes and wild animals.

Most of the natives of the region are cannibals, and further fear for the fliers' safety was felt when it was learned they were unarmed.

ADMITTS BOOZE CHARGE

PORTSMOUTH, O., April 3.—J. A. Weber who resigned as superintendent of the Roosevelt state game preserve after liquor was found in a preserve lodge, pleaded guilty to possession in municipal court here and was fined $100.

FEDERALS VICTORS OVER REBEL FORCES IN JIMINEZ BATTLE

Bloody Fight Routs Rebels; Losers Flee To North

MEXICO CITY, April 3.—Federal aviators and cavalry tried desperately to cut off northward retreat of defeated rebels today after a "bloody but brilliant" government victory in the critical two-day battle at Jiminez, the Presidencia announced.

The central railroad station at Jiminez was in flames and reported "filled with rebel dead" after the long and severe fighting, according to a bulletin at Chapultepec Castle.

Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles estimates that the insurgents had lost 300 men each day and captured rebels said 100 had been killed in early hours of the fighting.

Six train loads of fleeing and "panic stricken" rebels were held north of the scene of the battle by the first of seven burned railroad bridges, one federal aviator informed the government. Two rear guard trains also were delayed.

Cavalry, supported by artillery and aviators, threw back the rebel attack and tore open the path to the shell-battered city, Calles reported.

The Presidencia also announced that the insurgent retreat northward continued on the western coast front. Gen. Jaime Carrillo reported that the federal column occupied La Cruz, state of Sinaloa, and added that many rebels were deserting their leaders. He said prisoners captured at El Estero told him the rebels lost 200 dead, 187 wounded and 100 deserters in fighting at Mazatlan.

All reports from the Jiminez area indicated that the fighting had been desperate as insurgents, personally commanded by Gen. J. Gonzales Escobar, attempted to fight their way through the federal lines which Calles had established around the city.

One of two rebel leaders—either Gen. Luis Gutierrez or his brother, Gen. Eulalio Gutierrez—was killed at Jiminez, Calles reported.

Many other officers were reported to have died in the battle, and an early message from the minister of war put the federal losses at fifty men.

Calles assured Emilio Portes Gil that he would quickly push his campaign "of extermination" to a close, indicating his belief that the victory had done much to break the back of the insurgent force.

Reliable estimates placed the number of rebels in the Jiminez area at about 5,000. The federal troops would outnumber them by more than two to one, it was said.

THIEF HURLS BRICK

COLUMBUS, O., April 3.—A brick-hurling purse snatcher was sought by police today in connection with the attack on Mrs. Jennie M. Schrantz, 41. Mrs. Schrantz was felled with a brick as she left a lodge meeting. Her skull was fractured. Her assailant grabbed her purse and escaped.

KILLED BY AUTO

COLUMBUS, April 3.—William H. Micheltree, 36, a machinist, is dead here from injuries received in an automobile accident.

CRUSHED TO DEATH

ZANESVILLE, April 3.—Richard L. Davis, 35, was crushed to death here when a tractor owned by the Avers Mineral Company overturned.

FALLS TO DEATH

LORAIN, O., April 3.—Arthur J. Berlin was killed when he fell sixty feet from a scaffold while working on the Cleveland Illuminating Co. plant, six miles east of here.

PHILADELPHIA, April 3.—Although C. C. Pyle beamed cheerfully as his "bunions" started for Wilmington today, during the camp's stay here it was indicated his 1929 version of a trans-continental race was not being run over a road of roses.

Pyle, who was listed on the program (price twenty-five cents) as the "director general," joined his runners and

"cross country follies" here after being sick in New York when the race started Sunday.

He found some of his runners threatening to leave unless guaranteed more expense money, the crowds rather small and his chorus girls threatening to mutiny. Pyle smiled and granted all requests for press interviews.

While Pyle was willing to admit that the crowds were "not all they might be," he told all who wanted to listen

COUPLE FOUND SHOT TO DEATH IN PARKED AUTO

COLUMBUS, O., April 3.—E. A. Welsh, credit manager of the Gwinn Milling Company here and Miss Eleanor Porter, an employee, were found shot to death in an automobile parked two miles north of New Albany today.

A bullet had pierced Welsh's head. His left hand clasped a revolver. Miss Porter had been shot in the chest. Coroner Murphy, after a preliminary examination, said he believed Welsh shot Miss Porter, then killed himself.

The bodies were found by Walter Ulrey, a farmer who said the automobile was parked near his home last midnight. He said the car was still there this morning, and becoming suspicious, he investigated.

The attitude of the new administration toward law enforcement, the Jones law increasing penalties for convicted commercial liquor manufacturers and distributors and the apparent willingness of congress to give the prohibition bureau whatever funds are necessary for adequate personnel, have doomed the bootlegger's profession, the commissioner believes.

"I think the Jones law is going to help immeasurably," he said. "It is too soon, however, to tell what results it will get."

"At least, a more serious view of prohibition enforcement has been taken since the last session of congress. The new law, combined with the president's appeal for observance and his decision to make a study of criminal conditions have had a stimulating and wholesome influence."

Doran is not particularly worried about manifestations of public indignation against the sinking of the Canadian schooner "Im Alone" by a coast guard cutter, the slaying of a woman by state agents at Aurora, Ill., and charges that congressmen who recently voted for the Jones law, have imported liquor into the United States.

Regarding these incidents as unfortunate to the cause of prohibition, he does not believe they will have any permanent adverse effect on enforcement.

Sitting behind a paper-strewn desk in his stuffy little office in one of the government's temporary war buildings, Doran outlined the two-fold program by which he hopes ultimately to drive the bootleggers out of business and make national prohibition a reality. It is this:

1. Break the traffic by apprehending and convicting big liquor operators.

2. Cut off the demand by educating the country to the benefits of prohibition and the private citizens' responsibility to respect the law.

To accomplish the first part of this program, better cooperation between federal, state and city officials is necessary, Doran said.

"We are making progress," he said. "I don't say this for purposes of propaganda. It is the fact. I have just returned from a tour of Pennsylvania and Ohio where I found conditions tremendously improved."

"It is the same in New York and Chicago."

The second phase of Doran's program—education on prohibition—is necessarily a long-time project, he continued. Various advertising devices will be employed to carry on a systematic fight against anti-prohibition propaganda.

It is this part of the bureau's activity that is affected by the recent acts of violence in connection with prohibition enforcement. Doran's agents have not been responsible for any of these incidents, however, and he has taken precautions to see they never are repeated. Such events make for ammunition for the anti-prohibitionists.

"I don't believe the 'Im Alone' incident will have any serious adverse effect on enforcement," Doran said. "Its international aspects are the important thing in that case."

"The Aurora shooting was different. I cannot condone the acts of state agents in that case. Nothing of that kind has happened recently in which federal agents have been involved and I am confident there will be none."

"Concerning congressmen charged with importing liquor, I can only say that the least to be expected of legislators is obedience to the laws they make."

PHILADELPHIA, April 3.—Although C. C. Pyle beamed cheerfully as his "bunions" started for Wilmington today, during the camp's stay here it was indicated his 1929 version of a trans-continental race was not being run over a road of roses.

CHILD HIRED TO BUY BOOTLEG BOOZE

Charles Robert Miller, 8, third grade student in Aurora, Ill., who was hired by a dry snooper from State's Attorney G. D. Carberry's office to buy liquor. Methods of the dry forces were revealed in the investigation of the causes of the raid which resulted in the death of Mrs. De King last week.

LINDY CALLS ON FIANCEE

Believe Date For Nuptials To Be Set Soon

MEXICO CITY, April 3.—Although officially there was no special significance attached to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's latest visit to his fiancée, Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, daughter of the American ambassador, it was firmly believed today that the exact date and place for the impending marriage would be decided while Lindbergh is here.

Lindbergh is expected to remain here for a week. His arrival here, it was understood, was wholly unexpected. The Morrow family had believed that he would be here within a few days, but not until they were informed by the press did they have any idea that he would arrive yesterday, they said.

He circled the embassy, as is his custom when he arrives in Mexico City, by way of letting Miss Morrow know that he is in town. Shortly afterward he landed at Valbuena Field, where he was greeted by Anne and members of her family and Colonel Alexander MacNab, military attaché to the embassy, who said "Hello."

Lindbergh said: "How are you?" and then greeted Mrs. Morrow and the other members of the party.

The flier declined to answer even the usual conventional questions about his flight.

FRENCH CRUISER WILL CONVEY BODY

PARIS, April 3.—Officers of the French cruiser Tourville, which will carry the body of Ambassador Herrick to the United States, were making final preparations today for the funeral journey across the Atlantic.

Georges Leygues, French minister of marine, said the Tourville had been ordered to average twenty knots an hour, instead of traveling at its capacity of thirty-six.

WISCONSIN VOTES WET; ASKS REPEAL OF STATE DRY STATUTES

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 3.—Led by a tremendous majority in this once famous city of brewers, the "wets" of Wisconsin today had succeeded in rolling up a ruling vote of "yes" on the two anti-prohibition proposals.

In 1,810 of the state's 2,771 precincts the people voted 211,126 to 125,742 in favor of repealing the state prohibition laws and in 1,357 precincts they cast 198,342 votes in favor of legalizing 2.75 per cent beer and 116,342 against it.

In Milwaukee, the voters were approximately five to one in favor of both proposals.

Thus the inhabitants of Milwaukee and the industrial cities down the lake shore between here and Chicago were raising their empty steins today in a toast to the abolition of all bans on their beloved beer.

The state dry law remains on the books but the vote means that the people have asked the legislature to remove it.

CHARGE OF BRIBERY CAUSE OF REMOVAL; WILL FIGHT CHARGE

Groh Absent From Hearing; Newspaper Man Now Mayor

COLUMBUS, O., April 3.—Governor Myers V. Cooper today sent formal notice to the city council of Dover that Mayor P. J. Groh has been deposed.

Groh was ousted on charges of nonfeasance, malfeasance, and misfeasance growing out of the alleged acceptance of a $50 bribe from a state dry agent.

The bribery charge was filed by Prohibition Commissioner Rupert R. Beetham after a dry agent testified he posed as a rum runner and offered Groh $50 for "protection."

Groh also has been bound over in Dover and is at liberty under bond pending action of the grand jury.

The governor issued his ouster order late yesterday, for morning paper release, after announcing a decision would not be forthcoming until today or tomorrow.

Groh had been cited to appear for hearing but he neither appeared nor was he represented.

The governor's order pointed out that Groh had been notified of the hearing and had been given an opportunity to answer the charges, but had refused to appear in his own defense.

"With all the facts before me," the governor said, "and without prejudicing his guilt or innocence of any subsequent criminal charges which may be preferred, I conceive it to be my duty as governor to remove said P. J. Groh from the office of mayor of the city of Dover."

The ouster is effective today and the president of the Dover city council automatically becomes mayor.

Groh also was found guilty of willful neglect and failure to enforce the laws relating to intoxicating liquor.

Groh made a sweeping denial of the bribery charges following his arrest.

DOVER, O., April 3.—Peter J. Groh, ousted mayor of Dover, today declares he would continue to fight the charge of accepting a $50 bribe that resulted in his removal by Governor Myers V. Cooper.

Although he failed to attend the hearing before the governor yesterday and apparently was surprised at the action taken, he had no comment to make.

His attorney, Henry Bowers, said he had asked the governor to postpone the hearing, and when his request was refused, he decided it "would be useless for Mayor Groh to go before the governor."

Groh is charged with accepting a $50 bribe from Edward Little, state prohibition agent who posed as a rum runner, in return for a promise of protection for a road of liquor. Groh has steadfastly denied the charge.

Ernest Barthelme, president of city council and business manager of the Dover Daily Reporter, today automatically became mayor under provisions of the state law.

JUNIOR FAIRS WILL BE HELD THIS YEAR

COLUMBUS, O., April 3.—The state department of agriculture today announced that junior fairs—sponsored and conducted by boys and girls—will be held throughout the state this year in connection with county, district and state fairs.

The junior fair movement originated last year when the Ashley, O., fair conducted one under the guidance of C. E. Ashbrook, who outlined the organization at the annual meeting of the state fair managers association here.

Agriculture Director Perry L. Green voiced his endorsement of the idea and he said arrangements would be made to conduct junior fairs on a state-wide basis this year. He also announced a junior fair managers' association will be formed.

COX MYSTERY STILL REMAINS UNSOLVED

KENT, O., April 3.—Mystery surrounding the disappearance of nine-year-old Edmond Cox, who has been missing since last Wednesday, still remained unsolved today and detectives admittedly were baffled.

Police held to three theories in the lad's disappearance. Either he was drowned in one of the many lakes or creeks in and around Kent was kidnapped or ran away, they believe.

The Goodyear baby blimp "Puritan" cruised over the vicinity late yesterday, seeking some trace of the boy, but without avail.

MANSLAUGHTER CASE FACING DRY OFFICER WHO KILLED WOMAN

Coroner's Jury Orders

Bloody Fight Routs Revolters; Losers Flee To North

MEXICO CITY, April 3.—Federal aviators and cavalry tried desperately to cut off northward retreat of defeated rebels today after a "bloody but brilliant" government victory in the critical two-day battle at Jiminez, the Presidential announced.

TUTTLE REVEALS NO
LIQUOR FOUND WITH
OHIO CONGRESSMAN

Believe No Action Will Be Taken In Morgan Case

NEW YORK, April 3.—While United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle reserved decision today, it was considered unlikely here that further action would be taken in the case of Rep. William M. Morgan, dry Ohio congressman who was reported to have had four bottles of liquor in his baggage when he arrived from Panama recently.

Tuttle announced the findings of an investigation in which it was brought out that none of the customs officials involved had opened Morgan's luggage and the sole basis for the assertion that he had liquor was his alleged statement that his bags contained four bottles of whiskey.

"Some have asked me if I have any reason to believe the customs men have changed their stories," Tuttle said. "There is not the slightest indication of that. I am informed by the collector and other officials that the statements the customs men gave me are in exact accord with their official accounts at the beginning."

Morgan has denied possessing liquor when he returned to this country on the liner Cristobal. Customs men said the congressman telephoned to their office and asked for free entry to the port because of his official position. He received the right of free entry, they said.

CORONER ACCUSES
WOMAN OF MURDER

HARTFORD, Conn., April 3.—Coroner Gilbert J. Calhoun issued a finding of murder yesterday after an inquest into the chloroforming of Harry E. Adams, Buddhist weather man.

He named Mrs. Olive Adams, diminutive wife of Adams as the murderer.

"There is no question that during the last evening of his life, relations between them were harmonious," Calhoun's findings said.

"She had abundant opportunity if she had wished to remove the fatal handkerchief at any time before the poison had done its work."

"She seems not only to have acted with premeditation in putting the handkerchief there, but to have persisted in that feeling all during the night."

REPEAL OF STATE DRY STATUTES

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 3.—Led by a tremendous majority in this once famous city of brewers, the "wets" of Wisconsin today had succeeded in rolling up a ruling vote of "yes" on the two anti-prohibition proposals.

In 1,810 of the state's 2,771 precincts the people voted 211,126 to 125,742 in favor of repealing the state prohibition laws and in 1,357 precincts they cast 198,342 votes in favor of legalizing 2.75 per cent beer and 116,342 against it.

In Milwaukee, the voters were approximately five to one in favor of both proposals.

Thus the inhabitants of Milwaukee and the industrial cities down the lake shore between here and Chicago were raising their empty steins today in a toast to the abolition of all bans on their beloved beer.

The state dry law remains on the books but the vote means that the people have asked the legislature to remove it.

CHARGE OF BRIBERY CAUSE OF REMOVAL; WILL FIGHT CHARGE

GROH ABSENT FROM HEARING;
Newspaper Man
Now Mayor

COLUMBUS, O., April 3.—Governor Myers Y. Cooper today sent formal notice to the city council of Dover that Mayor P. J. Groh has been deposed.

Groh was ousted on charges of nonfeasance, malfeasance, and misfeasance growing out of the alleged acceptance of a $50 bribe from a state dry agent.

The bribery charge was filed by Prohibition Commissioner Rupert R. Beetham after a dry agent testified he posed as a rum runner and offered Groh $50 for "protection."

Groh also has been bound over in Dover and is at liberty under bond pending action of the grand jury.

The governor issued his ouster order late yesterday, for morning paper release, after announcing a decision would not be forthcoming until today or tomorrow.

Groh had been cited to appear for hearing but he neither appeared nor was he represented.

The governor's order pointed out that Groh had been accused of the hearing and had been given an opportunity to answer the charges, but had refused to appear to his own defense.

"With all the facts before me," the governor said, "and without prejudging his guilt or innocence, or any subsequent criminal charges which may be preferred, I conceive it to be my duty as governor to remove said P. J. Groh from the office of mayor of the city of Dover."

The ouster is effective today and the president of the Dover city council automatically becomes mayor.

Groh also was found guilty of willful neglect and failure to enforce the laws relating to intoxicating liquor.

Groh made a sweeping denial of the bribery charges following his arrest.

DOVER, O., April 3.—Peter J. Groh, ousted mayor of Dover, today declares he would continue to fight the charge of accepting a $50 bribe that resulted in his removal by Governor Myers Y. Cooper.

Although he failed to attend the hearing before the governor yesterday and apparently was surprised at the action taken, he had no comment to make.

His attorney, Henry Bowers, said he had asked the governor to postpone the hearing, and when his request was refused, he declared it "would be useless for Mayor Groh to go before the governor."

Groh is charged with accepting a $50 bribe from Edward L. Davis, state prohibition agent who posed as a rum runner, in return for a promise of protection for a load of liquor. Groh has steadfastly denied the charge.

Ernest Barthelme, president of city council and business manager of the Dover Daily Reporter, today automatically became mayor under provisions of the state law.

JUNIOR FAIRS WILL BE HELD THIS YEAR

COLUMBUS, O., April 3.—The state department of agriculture today announced that junior fairs—sponsored and conducted by boys and girls—will be held throughout the state this year in connection with county, district and state fairs.

The junior fair movement originated last year when the Ashley, O., fair conducted one under the guidance of C. E. Ashbrook, who outlined the organization at the annual meeting of the state fair managers association here.

Agriculture Director Perry L. Green voiced his endorsement of the idea and he said arrangements would be made to conduct junior fairs on a state-wide basis this year. He also announced a junior fair managers' association will be formed.

COX MYSTERY STILL REMAINS UNSOLVED

KENT, O., April 3.—Mystery surrounding the disappearance of nine-year-old Edmond Cox who has been missing since last Wednesday, still remained unsolved today and detectives admittedly were baffled.

Police hold to three theories to the lad's disappearance. Either he was drowned in one of the many lakes or creeks in and around Kent was kidnapped or ran away, they believe.

The Goodyear baby blimp "Puritan" cruised over the vicinity late yesterday seeking some trace of the boy, but without avail.

WHAT PRICE DETERMINATION!

Miss Helen Santmyer Yearns As Child To Write Novels, And Behold—Her Second Novel.

WHEN Miss Helen Hoover Santmyer, W. Third St., read Louisa Alcott's "Little Women" at the age of nine, she decided then and there that she would write novels.

The fact that her second novel, "The Pious Dispute" (Houghton-Mifflin Co.—$2.50) is just being issued, is proof of a determination and strength of purpose the lack of which sends many childhood ambitions to the graveyard of forgotten hopes.

PERHAPS Miss Santmyer succeeded where so many others fail and drift into careers less exacting than the arts, because she did not attempt to write until she had equipped herself carefully for that profession.

It may be supposed that, inspired by Mrs. Alcott's literary work, she did not immediately seek paper and pencil, set down the tragic figure "Chap. IV" and then proceed to let childhood limitations sacrifice her ambition on an altar of crushed hopes. That may seem far-fetched to the uninitiate but it is a fact that many a manuscript destined to be the "great American novel" was born to bluish unseem and dust-laden in the bottom of a wardrobe trunk. The proof may be found in the hall bedrooms from metropolis to hamlet.

HOME-TOWN friends of Miss Santmyer know that she did not go through school here shedding an aura of literary brilliance. Rather she was a thoroughly normal person during her public school days in Xenia, albeit a bit more attentive in the classes of Miss Jean B. Elwell in Central High School.

The flame of literary purpose apparently burned just as brightly however, despite its lack of show. Miss Santmyer continued her education at Wellesley. She taught school for a time and gained editorial experience on Scribner's Magazine, which is still holding aloft the beacon of thoughtful writing.

MISS Santmyer's first novel was "Herbs and Apples," which immediately gained a popular reception and the New Republic found in it "a breathless delicacy and poignancy, insight and power." Then she went to England, where she took a research degree at Oxford, and gained further experience which is the principal tool of the writer.

Her new novel is a story of a love that survived unfaithfulness, desertion and death itself. Houghton-Mifflin furnishes this synopsis: "When Hilary Baird was twenty she went to Italy and there married Paolo, who had neither money, position nor character. Finally she left him and came home with their child, Lucy Anne. Her mother took them in with the understanding that Paolo should never be mentioned and that Lucy Anne should have no musical education, lest she become like her father. Hilary, her beautiful life in ruins about her consented silently. She knew, however, that Lucy Anne was born to be a musician and that no power on earth could keep her permanently from her heritage. In the end, Paolo's spirit, which was strong enough to possess Hilary, triumphs over her mother as well. The story of the struggle is intensely dramatic, a spiritual and psychological conflict which rends the souls of two brave women."

Thus has Miss Santmyer twice attained the goal that holds its elusive self aloft at all times for those who would write if they have the ability, the capacity for work and the determination to convert this ability into a finished literary product.

"The part of writing that I enjoy most," says Miss Santmyer, "is not writing at all; it is thinking an idea out bit by bit before I go to sleep at night. I like to sit on a balcony and watch the world go by, only changing the balcony frequently. I also like to garden, to play bridge, to argue with my friends and to have tea in the afternoon."

Thus a thoroughly normal person—but what price determination of purpose? Miss Santmyer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Santmyer, W. Third St.

A Cold—Painful Backache—Relief! J. C. Diamond, Cleveland, Ohio, caught a cold, which settled in his kidneys. "It gave me great pain. I could not straighten up; it hindered my work; my nights were miserable and sleepless. In my daily paper, I saw an advertisement of Foley's Pills diuretic, so I bought a bottle and took them with the most satisfactory results. Pains disappeared; clearance became normal; I slept soundly again." Men and women everywhere use and recommend them. Satisfaction guaranteed. Sold everywhere. Adv.

ROTARY CLUB PAYS TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF OSCAR BRADFUTE

Tributes to the late Oscar E. Bradfute, widely known agriculture leader, were paid by various members at the weekly luncheon-meeting of the Rotary Club at the Elk's Club Tuesday.

The meeting was given over entirely to memorial talks. F. L. Smith eulogized the former American and Ohio Farm Bureau Federation president from the standpoint of a neighbor and also discussed his activities in the field of agriculture and livestock raising.

Dr. B. R. McClellan paid tribute to him as a Rotarian, while J. R. Kimber, former county agricultural agent, discussed his activities with relation to local farm bureau work, and the Rev. H. B. McElree spoke of his church affiliations.

Annual election of officers for the coming year will feature the next weekly meeting. The new officers will not be installed until July 1 but are being elected at the coming meeting in order that they may attend in their new capacity the annual southern Ohio district Rotary meeting at Zanesville, O., Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week. Many local Rotarians are expected to attend the district session.

Thus has Miss Santmyer twice attained the goal that holds its elusive self aloft at all times for those who would write if they have the ability, the capacity for work and the determination to convert this ability into a finished literary product.

"The part of writing that I enjoy most," says Miss Santmyer, "is not writing at all; it is thinking an idea out bit by bit before I go to sleep at night. I like to sit on a balcony and watch the world go by, only changing the balcony frequently. I also like to garden, to play bridge, to argue with my friends and to have tea in the afternoon."

PERHAPS Miss Santmyer succeeded where so many others fail and drift into careers less exacting than the arts, because she did not attempt to write until she had equipped herself carefully for that profession.

It may be supposed that, inspired by Mrs. Alcott's literary work, she did not immediately seek paper and pencil, set down the tragic figure "Chap. I" and then proceed to let childhood limitations sacrifice her ambition on an altar of crushed hopes. That may seem far-fetched to the uninitiate but it is a fact that many a manuscript destined to be the "great American novel" was born to bluish unseen and dust-laden in the bottom of a wardrobe trunk. The proof may be found in the hall bedrooms from metropolises to hamlets.

HOMETOWN friends of Miss Santmyer know that she did not go through school here shedding an aura of literary brilliance. Rather she was a thoroughly normal person during her public school days in Xenia, albeit a bit more attentive in the classes of Miss Jean B. Elwell in Central High School.

The flame of literary purpose apparently burned just as brightly however, despite its lack of show and Miss Santmyer continued her education at Wellesley. She taught school for a time and gained editorial experience on Scribner's Magazine, which is still holding aloft the beacon of thoughtful writing.

MISS Santmyer's first novel was "Herbs and Apples," which immediately gained a popular reception and the New Republic found in it "a breathless delicacy and poignancy, insight and power." Then she went to England, where she took a research degree at Oxford, and gained further experience which is the principal tool of the writer.

Her new novel is a story of a love that survived unfaithfulness, desertion and death itself. Houghton-Mifflin furnishes this synopsis: "When Hilary Baird was twenty she went to Italy and there married Paolo, who had neither money, position nor character. Finally she left him and came home with their child, Lucy Anne. Her mother took them in with the understanding that Paolo should never be mentioned and that Lucy Anne should have no musical education, lest she become like her father. Hilary, her beautiful life in ruins about her consented silently. She knew, however, that Lucy Anne was born to be a musician and that no power on earth could keep her permanently from her heritage. In the end, Paolo's spite, which was strong enough to possess Hilary, triumphs over her mother as well. The story of the struggle is intensely dramatic, a spiritual and psychological conflict which rends the souls of two brave women."

The Way of the World

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT
Whatever may be your opinion of your experience, you will be interested in this statement by an educator. He is Rev. John A. McCleary, University of Detroit. He says: "The evil which it is proposed to avoid by birth control is not as great as it is pictured. Birth controllers over-emphasize the number of epileptic and vicious in the world. Besides, how can these birth controllers know that the children of defective parents will be defective? Weak-mindedness and vice are not always inevitable. Geniuses as well as imbeciles have sprung from mad parents. Saints as well as sinners have descended from vicious forebears. Moreover, epilepsy and freakishness have often been found joined to genius.

"Pascal was afflicted with vertigo and convulsions. Edgar Allan Poe has been classed as a psychic degenerate. Byron was subject to convulsions. Darwin seems to have suffered from chronic neurasthenia. Chopin was extremely nervous.

"Lombroso classes as epileptics Moliere, Julius Caesar, Petrarch and Peter the Great. Newton is alleged to have been demented. Thus birth control runs the risk of excluding from life geniuses as well as defectives."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY
HUMILITY REWARDED — Thus saith the Lord God; Remove the diadem, and take off the crown; this shall not be the same; exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high.—Ezekiel 21:26.

SHOCKING ROYALTY
MOTIVE BACK OF IMPEACHMENT
The resolution introduced in the Louisiana legislature to impeach Governor Huey P. Long contains nineteen charges. They range from participating in "an entertainment where intoxicating liquor was served," to attempting to procure the assassination of a member of the legislature. The real motive behind the move to oust him from office is likely to be found in the seventh charge, which alleges:

"That he has subordinated civil authority to the military and as commander-in-chief has attempted to impose his own will through the militia, as superior to the courts, without declaring martial law, causing the militia to loot and pillage private property and to take from the person of certain individuals their private property and destroy private property without due process of law."

Governor Long was swept into office last year by the "upstate vote." Consequently he probably feels that he owes New Orleans little, as political debts go. This may account for the enthusiasm with which he set about cleaning up the gambling establishments in Jefferson and St. Bernard parishes, which impinge so closely upon the metropolis that it was possible to stand in one parish and lay a bet in another. When the parish authorities proved their inability to cope with the situation, Governor Long sent in the militia. Then he swung his legs from a bed in the St. Charles hotel and told the reporters that he would turn his cossacks loose in the Crescent City itself if the genial Tom Healy did not take the lead out of the feet of his policemen. This threat was agreeable to the business element, which wanted the gamblers dislodged, as they were getting the cream of the pay envelopes; but it naturally aroused the determined opposition of a numerous and strongly entrenched class in "the gambling capital of America." The axe that now threatens his official head is wielded by hands that deal the cards and set the wheel revolving.

Whether Governor Long is a reformer or merely the tool of reformers is of less importance than the lesson that his ruthless methods teach. A governor has the power to employ the militia to enforce the laws of his state, when the local authorities are unable to; but it is a power that obviously must be used with discretion. Certain safeguards have been erected about the civil rights of the citizenry. Governor Long has proved again that these safeguards cannot be arbitrarily overridden and the innocent unnecessarily exposed to oppression in order to reach and punish the guilty, without causing widespread apprehension and protest. The gamblers alone can't oust him from office. A citizenry aroused by a threat against their civil rights can.

First, Mr. Hoover ordered the president's yacht, the Mayflower, taken out of commission in order to save the public money. Now he has ordered the executive stable discontinued for a similar reason. And with the administration still but a few weeks old, almost anything may happen.

Your BROADWAY And Mine

NEW YORK — A pessimist was pointed out on Broadway last night and it was said of him that "he even gets up early so he'll have more time to worry."

THE BROADWAY WAY
The locals tell of a young lass with stage aspirations who persistently urged the manager of a small town stock troupe to give her a chance. After many months of pleading, the impresario gave her a "bit." The amateur went through the horrible experience of being kidded, but eventually she clicked and was given prominent assignments.

Recently when the stock group went on tour through Ohio, it met with reverses. The chief couldn't attract enough coin to pay off, but the players didn't squawk. That is, except the lass who was given "a break." She went to court and got an attachment on the "offensive."

Nice girl.

IN THIS TOWN O' FOURS
Frances "Whoopee" Upton is so religious she even has a portable organ in her undressing room. Mary Keegan, wardrobe mistress at the N. Amsterdam, owns two tenements on 1, 13th St. Harlan Thompson has devised a new method of making movie-tones that will save a million and a half per annum. Some old taxes in N. Y. have conspired against the new black and white Checkers, and are bumping them so they won't look so slick. A well-known up-town Sky Pilot will strand his tony congregation and start a new religion of his own. Old Man Trader Horn is back in S. Africa with a private secretary, Ford and chauffeur. Adele Smith, a Folies show girl, and a chorus man (with rich folks) in the same show, are baby-talking. After John Gilbert talked to Greta Garbo in Paris for 30 minutes last Monday, he sent the chief operator at 24 Walker St. a mess of long-stemmed Briars.

CHANGE IN PROGRESS?
Michigan house of representatives passes a bill to make hunting with the bow and arrow legal. Is this progress or what? Perhaps it is. Perhaps the world would be better off with fewer firearms and more bows and arrows.

HANCOCK AND THE TARIFF
A correspondent sets us right in kind and courteous manner. He says it was Cleveland who called the tariff "a local issue." It was Hancock. It appears that "Winfield" has made this same remark during the Garfield-Hancock presidential campaign in 1880.

Who's Who in Timely Views

WORLD CONFERENCE TO CONSERVE NATURAL RESOURCES SUGGESTED
By GIFFORD PINCHOT
Former Governor of Pennsylvania (Gifford Pinchot was born at Simsbury, Conn., Aug. 11, 1865. He was graduated from Yale university, later studying forestry abroad. He holds several honorary degrees. In 1892 he began his first systematic forest work at Baltimore, N. C. From 1898 to 1910 he was chief of division, forest service, department of agriculture. In 1903 he was professor of forestry at Yale and commissioner of forestry in Pennsylvania from 1920 to 1923. He was governor of Pennsylvania from 1923 to 1927. He is a member of several national scientific organizations and the author of a number of books of forestry.

As a citizen of the United States persuaded of the necessity for conserving the material basis of prosperity not only of our own country, but of the whole earth, I have asked President Hoover to consider the advisability of calling an international conference to discuss the common interests of the nations in the conservation of natural resources, and to provide for an inventory of those resources throughout the world.

I am convinced that the fundamental importance of this matter, upon which the civilization, welfare, and mutual helpfulness of the nations directly depend, warranted my calling it to Mr. Hoover's attention at the outset of his administration.

The United States has already moved in the direction suggested. In 1909 President Roosevelt, acting through Linnaeus, then secretary of state, addressed to the nations of the world an inquiry as to their attitude upon this matter, and later formally invited them, with the concurrence of the Queen of Holland, to attend a "World Conference for the Conservation of Natural Resources" to be held in the Peace Palace at The Hague.

The response was immediate and most gratifying. Of the 48 nations which invitations were addressed, 30 (including Great Britain, France, Germany, Canada and Mexico and most of the Latin American countries) promptly accepted. But five nations, all of them small, declined.

I believe so great and beneficial a project, initiated by the United States, received with approval by the great majority of the nations, and so clearly harmful to none and helpful to all, may appropriately be revived and carried to completion by the country of its origin under an administration which seeks to maintain the most cordial relations with the people of the earth.

CARRYING WATER TO THE ELEPHANT (But not the way the elephant expected)

How to Achieve Beauty

I am going to tell you again about hair—out this time it will be about every type and color of hair, asbly, golden, Titian, auburn, chestnut, black, white, silver, naturally curly, straight and permanently waved.

Had you realized that there were so many kinds and that they all require different care? Basically, of course, the care of all hair is the same. The proper care is health care, and it depends upon the good general health of the body. It requires good circulation, which, in the case of the hair, means massage and brushing. And it requires cleanliness, which means proper shampooing and more brushing.

Heads of different colors, however, need different kinds of shampoos and rinses. Blonde hair, especially, must be carefully washed and rinsed to preserve its natural color and beauty.

Of all heads, I think the naturally blonde head can be the loveliest. Whether it is a pale, silver-yellow, or a tawny-yellow, with amber or honey-colored lights, or a soft ash-blonde, the fair-haired type has something rare and lovely about it which sets it apart from the ordinary reds, browns and blacks of the darker-haired world, and makes us think romantically of fairy tales and princesses.

Truly golden hair is something to live up to, because it is the rarest of all. Children have it often, but often, too, it darkens as they grow older. The golden-haired woman who stays golden-haired until she is gray—or silver—usually takes wise, golden-hair precautions.

Here are some of the rules she follows, in company with all her blonde-haired sisters, the pale, daffodil-yellow type and the Titian.

She never washes her hair with tar soap or uses sage tea or any oily tonic, since these are bound to be darkening. Instead she shampoos preferably with a light-colored liquid shampoo, or with pure castile soap, shaved fine and melted in water. This course is a little more troublesome to use than the delightful prepared shampoo. Once every six or eight weeks she may discard a small amount of washing soda—about a level teaspoonful in a cup full of the liquid shampoo. This will keep hair light and fluffy, but it should not be used too often.

If her scalp is dry or the circulation poor and she needs a pomade or tonic to use with massage, she uses a pure, white cream, or a little mineral or castor oil mixed with cologne water. Either of these preparations will also help to take away the harsh, dry look of bleached hair, if she has been so unwise as to use a strong bleach to keep her hair light in color.

Mild bleaches, properly used, will not be really harmful. One teaspoonful of salts of tartar and two teaspoonfuls of strained lemon juice with three parts of water makes an excellent final rinse after the shampoo.

Camomile tea also makes a good rinse, especially for the Titian blonde. To make it, use ten cents worth of the tea boiled in a pint of water. Strain and apply evenly to the hair, leave on ten minutes, then rinse in tepid water.

No blonde hair is attractive when it is harsh and brittle—and the blonde whose hair is dry, and who wishes to effect a smooth Madonna-like style of hair dressing, or a sleek, golden-cappuccino, should use a white brilliantine made especially for fair hair.

This menu was planned for a day when housecleaning is on the program. Too much food to prepare on a busy day? The breakfast is easily and quickly prepared. The luncheon can be prepared in 15 or 20 minutes if the sauce and cookies are made. The roast is all ready to put in the oven with a small onion at each end of the pan and pepper and salt to season and half a cup hot water. It requires no further watching. The potatoes have been soaking and need only scrubbing and drying to put in the oven. The lettuce has been washed, the excess water shaken out and is put in a bag on ice ready to serve. The dessert is also ready early in the day and put in the refrigerator ready to serve. When the day's work is done and dinner served it is hot, hearty and appetizing with a modicum to work.

Today's Recipes
Cream of Corn Soup—Put a tablespoon butter in a saucepan, let it melt and add a level teaspoon flour, mix well, gradually adding a quart of milk. Keep stirring until it comes to a boil, then add a can of corn which has been opened and emptied into a bowl to be ready. Season with salt and pepper and serve with crackers or toast strips.

Canned Peas—Put the peas into a baking dish, add salt, a pinch of sugar, a little pepper and put it in the oven to heat thoroughly.

Systems To Attune Students To Business

Now, about this system of paying money to students for studying, as outlined by President H. N. Davis of Stevens Institute of Technology. I'm not quite clear yet as to how far the idea can be carried without disaster.

The Davis plan is, in actual practice, to take money from the dumb students and give it to the bright ones. This is done by hiking the tuition rate for all students, and then paying back to the students who do exceptionally good work.

Six very bright men in each class can win back $200 a year by doing their work better than the others, while other groups of six can get back as much as $250, $200, $150, $100 and $50, respectively. But the dumb ones get nothing back. They have paid their extra tuition, required under this scheme, in order to make it possible to hand these prizes over to the bright ones.

Doubtless there's a practical idea here. Mr. Davis probably has noticed that in the world of business and general activity outside of school, the dumb ones have to pay over their loot to the smart ones, and he wants to get his students properly attuned to practical life before they get their diplomas.

Still, it's going to start a lot of thinking on the part of parents, students and managers of school systems, public and private.

If the private schools offer to pay for good work, the bright students will desert the public institutions of learning in a body, and only the dumb will remain to be educated by the public.

The system could be simplified, it seems to me. When the pupils register in the fall, they could be run through the intelligence testing apparatus, and paid in cash for their intelligence before entering classes. Say a dollar for normal, with a dollar per point above normal and a dollar fine per point below normal. Larger prizes in richer neighborhoods, of course.

But it looks a bit murky, doesn't it?

THE ONE-MINUTE PULPIT
Say not unto thy neighbor, Go, and come again, and tomorrow I will give; when thou hast it by thee.

Devise not evil against thy neighbor, seeing he dwelleth securely by thee.—Proverbs 13, 28-29.

WORDS OF WISDOM
A blade of grass is always a blade of grass, whether in one country or another.—Samuel Johnson.

Our prayers should be for a sound mind in a healthy body.—Juvenal.

Diet and Health

SPANISH TAMALES
Here's a letter that I know, about looking at the address, comes from California. The writer wants to know the caloric contents of Spanish tamales.

The last time I wrote on males, I said the next time I as in California, I would get one and weigh the contents and estimate the value as accurately as possible without a laboratory. I took a trip to California during the holidays and did that little thing for you.

The tamale I examined weighed eight ounces with the husks, or seven ounces without. There were two and one-half ounces of a cornmeal paste, which I estimated about 150 calories. The filling consisted of two and one-half ounces of mixture of thickened gravy, three or four olives, a few raisins, some beans and a small amount of meat. All of this I estimated to be about 250 calories. So that would average about 400 calories for the average sized Spanish tamale.

None of the food lists gotten out by nutrition laboratories give tamales, so apparently they haven't yet been tested so I cannot give you a more accurate figure than this, but if you count approximately 400 calories, you won't be far wrong.

G.—Ordinary cereal bran is 100 calories to two-thirds of a cup (11 level tablespoons). The fine feed bran packs down much tighter and so would be 100 calories to about one-third cup.

The caloric value of a bran muffin depends upon the recipe used and the size, of course. An average sized muffin is approximately 125 to 150 C.

Most books on dietetics give lists of 100 caloric portions of foods. We have a list of good books on dietetics we can recommend to you, in the article on balanced diet.

V.—There is no more danger of reducing in the winter than there is during the summer, if you do it scientifically. The correct reducing regime, instead of lowering your resistance, builds it up.

If you are in need of instructions on how to reduce, you may have our pamphlet on the subject by following the column directions.

Marriage of Cousins
"I am keeping company with a girl whose father was my mother's father's brother. Is that relationship too close to consider marriage?"

"WONDERING."

Puzzling out this relationship puzzle, W., I reason that your mother's father is your grandfather. Your girl's father, being a brother of your grandfather, is your grand or greatuncle. So she is a first cousin to your mother and a second cousin to you. I guess this is right.

The marriage of first cousins can be sanctioned if there are no hereditary weaknesses or mental disorders in the families, for it seems that these traits are more apt to appear in the offspring. The marriage of second cousins, of course, makes this possibility more remote.

A. P.—You must see your physician. If your milk leg is getting worse, it is probable that you should keep off your feet for some period of time. You are considerably overweight and a reduction of your weight will improve your general condition, which, in turn, may help your leg.

Editor's Note: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose, nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and 2 cents in coin for each article, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, 10c in coin, with fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters, in care of this paper.

Living and Loving

"The human intelligence is a highly complicated organism in which intellect is forever conflicting with elemental impulses."

We all can testify to the truth of that, can't we? Even the most highly civilized humans easily revert to the savage when moved by over-mastering passion. Self-control is merely our intellect mastering elemental impulses.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE:
Two years before I met my husband he was engaged to a girl. Since we have been married he has received several love letters from her and then a letter telling him of her engagement. My husband suggested me writing and wishing her happiness, and said if I didn't he would. Her folks are old friends of my husband's folks. In her last letter she told him she would never love another as she loved him. Shall I write her or shall I let my husband I want to do the right thing. Thank you EARTH."

Why not both write her and wish her joy? That would show a charming spirit and also tell you know the correct thing to do if she doesn't.

AEM: You did not include a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and as my advice is short I thought I might take the liberty of answering it here. I hope you don't mind, dear. All you can do is to wait until your boyfriend comes to see you or answers your letter. Personally I think a girl of your age is too young to be engaged, but I suppose you will disagree with me.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: As you have helped many others I also come to you for advice. I am 15 years of age and have kept company some with boys. My folks have always approved of the time, and place and also the boys, with whom I have gone. I love nature, out-of-door sports, birds, flowers and music. The boy friend I am going with is very nice, but he insists on writing and coming offener than I want to have him. I wish he would go with other girls, as I do not think boys and girls of our age should become serious. He is 17. Please advise me what to do to get him interested in others without offending him, as he is very kind to me. SUZANNE"

You are a very sensible little girl, dear. Simply so with other boys and he will finally see that you prefer to have more than one friend. Boys of his age often change, too, so the question may be solved for you in that way.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have never seen any letters like this in the column and it may not be any good, but here's hoping it does. I saw a letter by a girl who gave her name as 'Paeed Up.' I would like to get acquainted with her as soon as possible. How would you suggest bringing this about? I am a boy 26 years of age, respectable, etc. Sorry Hank, I haven't the young lady's name or address.

Peter's Adventures

TRICKED IN SPITE OF FATHER'S WARNING
"I should have been so mad at those Ducks for being such traitors that I would have fown at them and pecked their feathers out if I had been you," exclaimed the boy and at this remark Duck quacked with glee.

"To be sure, I felt like doing that very thing, but it wouldn't have done me a bit of good," declared he. "Those Ducks were traitors to their people all right, but you see, they were not flesh and feather Ducks, they were made of wood, so that they would not have cared a bit what I did to them. I could have pecked them to pieces and they wouldn't have felt it!"

"Goodwill! I never thought of that!" exclaimed the boy. "When you found out they were only wooden images, what did you do then?"

"Everything I could think of to save my life," cried the Duck. "Just the very instant I found out that the Ducks were wood I remembered what my father had told me about a trick the Two-Legs had once played upon him and his two brothers.

"The Ducks started out fishing one fine day, and being very wary fishermen they waited before alighting on the water to make sure of 'safety first.' But when they saw other Ducks on the fishing grounds they thought of course that all was well and went to join them.

"Alas, the other Ducks, too, were made of wood, and put here to make the live Ducks come down so the Two-Legs could shoot them. Well, the Two-Leg hunter knew that my father and his brothers were too wild to catch unless they were tricked into coming near enough for him to shoot them.

"His friends fell victims to the hang-stick. Father only, was left to tell the tale, and many's the time he warned me against those same wooden Ducks. To think that I was fooled, after all!"

Duck shook his head and quacked "Only at himself for being so tricked."

"It only goes to prove that to Duck is so wise as he thinks he is," said he. "I will say (as much for myself, though; Hereafter I'll not trust myself near a Duck that does not quack. Never again!" The funny fellow nipped up his right foot as he made this vow. Peter laughed.

"Oh, you'll do the same thing over again," declared he. "We all do. Now do go on with your story. You birds have the most aggravating way of stopping just as you come to the most interesting point. Let's see, you said twice, three times. Did you hear a gun go off once, the shot hit you? Did you find out who was shooting? Was he aiming at you?"

"I should say I did! He certainly was!" declared Duck, answering the two last questions in the same breath. "Just the very second that I discovered those Ducks were made of wood, and remembered what my father had told me about his brothers, I knew my life was in terrible danger. Someone was out after my feathers!"

Once again a four-cornered fight looms in the National League pennant race. For several seasons it has been demonstrated that the championship struggle lies between four teams with the remaining four merely in there to serve the purpose of making possible a 154-game schedule and to fill up the second division berths.

It is generally agreed that the same situation will prevail again this season—that Chicago, New York, St. Louis and Pittsburgh are the actual pennant contenders, and that Cincinnati, Brooklyn, Boston and Philadelphia will fit into their old grooves in the second division. Once upon a time we used to try to root the Cincinnati Reds to the top, but always they have failed and we have since given it up as a bad job. Their best pitchers are fading and they do not seem to have the necessary stuff.

It is different in the American League. The junior circuit has witnessed the rise and fall of a number of clubs in recent years, so that the make-up of the first division is always in doubt until the season gets well under way. Even the peerless Yankees once shot down into seventh place when they got away from the pennant winning habit for one season.

The wise money has made the Chicago Cubs the favorites in the betting in the National League this season and in all probability they will go to the barrier as even money choices.

Will the American League race again resolve itself into a two-team fight this season? The betting indicates another stretch duel between the New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics. These two teams are being quoted close to even money, with the world's champions the favorites. The Yanks and Athletics, however, must watch out for that young hustling ball club, the St. Louis Browns. The Browns might upset a number of calculations in the 1929 scramble.

Lee Regan, who has acquired some reputation in local semi-pro baseball circles as a pitcher above the average, has signed a contract to hurl for Fairmont, W. Va., in the Middle-Atlantic League this summer. He will leave about April 24. Thurman Wical, former Bowersville pitcher, got his start with this club. Regan was bothered to some extent by a sore arm last season but is not so troubled this year and anticipates making good with the Southern club.

Eight teams will probably compete in the National and American football leagues here this summer, four in each league. The Phi Delta Kappa Fraternity will not have a team, but Kivans and Rotary will have a joint team or the Rotarians will have a team of their own, thus rounding out the eight teams. Other teams that have entered include Harness Cigar Store, the Downtown Country Club, Xenia Central High School's "Buccaners," Coates Barber Shop, Post Office, Lang Chevrolet Co. and the Hooven and Allison Co.

Independent baseball is again assured for Jamestown fans this summer. The Jamestown Independents plan to re-organize. Although the club will retain a majority of the players used last season, a few additions will be made to the lineup. A diamond has been obtained and is being put into condition. The club hopes to start practice soon.

LEADING HEADPIN BOWLERS KEEP LEAD

Entrants in the headpin bowling tournament in progress at the Recreation Parlor failed Tuesday, with one exception, to disturb the present four tourney leaders.

L. McCoy was the exception. He rolled 108, which placed him at a tie with McGee for fourth place. A total of twenty tourney games were rolled Tuesday. The tournament continues this week and all of next week and players may bowl as many games as they desire.

Four cash prizes are being offered by The Bryant Motor Sales Co., which is sponsoring the affair.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY HERE TO OBTAINING PROPERTY FALSELY

Arraigned Wednesday morning before R. O. Copsey, Xenia Twp. justice of the peace, on a charge of obtaining property under false pretenses, J. F. Paulin, 40, Dayton-Springfield Pike, near Fairfield, pleaded not guilty and will be given a preliminary hearing at 10 a. m. Friday. He is being held in the County Jail in default of bond.

Paulin was arrested Tuesday afternoon by Lawrence A. Davis, county road patrolman, on a warrant sworn out by Attorney E. D. Smith, this city. He was engaged in moving his property to Fayette County when taken into custody by Deputy Davis, who made his first arrest since being appointed to the position last Monday by Sheriff Ohmer Tate.

Paulin was named defendant in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court last Monday by The Farmers Fertilizer Co., Columbus, through Attorney Smith, alleging $713.44, due on a promissory note.

Attorney Smith said that after the action was brought he learned that Paulin had gone into bankruptcy last Saturday.

It is alleged that Paulin bought fertilizer worth $822 from the Columbus firm on the strength of a signed statement on the back of a promissory note that he had personal property valued at $20,000, over and above his debts and exemption.

Baseball Puzzlers

By CHARLEY BARRETT

Some of the college boys invent trick plays that are far fetched. I had occasion at one time to stop in and umpire a varsity game when the regular arbiter did not show and one of the coaches spotted me sitting in the grandstand.

One of the teams tipped me off to their particular trick play and told me to be on my toes when it turned up so that I would be sure to get it.

Their idea was for the catcher to fool the batter by taking him off watch in the following manner: With two strikes on the batter the catcher was to walk out of the pitcher's box, pat him on the back, loudly encourage him and return to his position. When a few steps away from his own box he would give a big leap, wheel in the air and the pitcher cut loose with a fast one down the middle. The idea was to get the batter to sleep.

Sure enough along about the middle of the game, with two on base, the pitcher managed to get two strikes on the batter. The catcher then trotted out to the hill when the pitcher stood on the rubber. He did this little act and walked slowly back toward the plate. Then he sprang into action, but the pitcher, over-anxious, cut loose a bit too soon.

That fast ball caught the pivoting catcher behind the ear and laid him out cold. The batter was fooled and took an awful cut at the ball, missing it completely. The ball rolled all the way to the gymnasium, and everyone scored, including the batter.

The coach insisted that I call time because the catcher was unconscious, but I was laughing too hard to tell him to look into the rule book.

I don't know which cigarette this is, but it sure wins my vote!"

W. H. (Bill) McCord, of Post & McCord, steel contractors for New York's tallest skyscrapers, holds cigarette test with 94 workers.

Friend, you're smoking a certain cigarette today because you feel it's the best brand for you.

And maybe you're right. But have you ever really checked up? Ever said to Old Man Habit, "Now you step out of the room. I'm going to smoke the four leading brands with brand names forgotten and just let my taste say which one is best."

The other day one of these tests was made among the huskiest fellows in New York . . . those two-fisted chaps who work with steel girders, sky-high above the city streets.

Their own boss, Mr. W. H. McCord, was referee and score keeper. Each cigarette was "masked" and numbered. All Mr. McCord said was, "Tell me which one you like the best."

The result speaks for itself! 69 out of 94 men voted for OLD GOLD!

OLD GOLD'S win time after time in these public tests, because smokers find them smoother and better . . . with not a cough in a carload.

For several seasons it has been demonstrated that the championship struggle lies between four teams with the remaining four merely in there to serve the purpose of making possible a 154-game schedule and to fill up the second division berths.

It is generally agreed that the same situation will prevail again this season—that Chicago, New York, St. Louis and Pittsburgh are the actual pennant contenders, and that Cincinnati, Brooklyn, Boston and Philadelphia will fit into their old grooves in the second division.

Once upon a time we used to try to root the Cincinnati Reds to the top, but always they have failed and we have since given it up as a bad job. Their best pitchers are fading and they do not seem to have the necessary stuff.

It is different in the American League. The junior circuit has witnessed the rise and fall of a number of clubs in recent years, so that the make-up of the first division is always in doubt until the season gets well under way.

Even the peerless Yankees once shot down into seventh place when they got away from the pennant winning habit for one season. The wise money has made the Chicago Cubs the favorites in the betting in the National League this season and in all probability they will go to the barrier as even money choices.

Will the American League race again resolve itself into a two-team fight this season? The betting indicates another stretch duel between the New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics. These two teams are being quoted close to even money, with the world's champions the favorites. The Yanks and Athletics, however, must watch out for that young hustling ball club, the St. Louis Browns. The Browns might upset a number of calculations in the 1929 scramble.

Lee Regan, who has acquired some reputation in local semi-pro baseball circles as a pitcher above the average, has signed a contract to hurl for Fairmont, W. Va., in the Middle-Atlantic League this summer. He will leave about April 24. Thurman Wical, former Bowersville pitcher, got his start with this club. Regan was bothered to some extent by a sore arm last season but is not so troubled in year and anticipates making good with the Southern club.

Eight teams will probably compete in the National and American Softball Leagues here this summer, four in each league. The Phi Delta Kappa Fraternity will have a team, but Kiwanis and Rotary will have a joint team or the Rotarians will have a team of their own, thus leaving out the eight teams. Other teams that have entered include the Downtown Cigar Store, the Downtown Country Club, Xenia Central High School's "Buccaners," Coates Barber Shop, Post Office, Lang Chevrolet Co. and the Hooven and Allison Co.

LEADING HEADPIN BOWLERS KEEP LEAD

Entrants in the headpin bowling tournament in progress at the Recreation Parlor failed Tuesday, with one exception, to disturb the present four tourney leaders. L. McCoy was the exception. He rolled 108, which placed him in a tie with McGee for fourth place. A total of twenty tourney games were rolled Tuesday. The tournament continues this week and all of next week and players may bowl as many games as they desire. Four cash prizes are being offered by The Bryant Motor Sales Co., which is sponsoring the affair.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY HERE TO OBTAINING PROPERTY FALSELY

Arraigned Wednesday morning before R. O. Copsey, Xenia Twp. justice of the peace, on a charge of obtaining property under false pretenses, J. F. Paullin, 40, Dayton-Springfield Pike, near Fairfield, pleaded not guilty and will be given a preliminary hearing at 10 a. m. Friday. He is being held in the County Jail in default of bond.

Paullin was arrested Tuesday afternoon by Lawrence A. Davis, county road patrolman, on a warrant sworn out by Attorney E. D. Smith, this city. He was engaged in moving his property to Fayette County when taken into custody by Deputy Davis, who made his first arrest since being appointed to the position last Monday by Sheriff Ohmer Tate.

Paullin was named defendant in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court last Monday by The Farmers Fertilizer Co., Columbus, through Attorney Smith, alleging $713.44, due on a promissory note.

Attorney Smith said that after the action was brought he learned that Paullin had come into bankruptcy last Saturday.

It is alleged that Paullin bought fertilizer worth $622 from the Columbus firm on the strength of a signed statement on the back of a promissory note that he had personal property valued at $20,000, over and above his debts and exemption.

KIWANIANS HEAR TALK ON SCHOOLS

Louis Hammerle, superintendent of schools was the principal speaker at the meeting of Kiwanis, Tuesday evening at the Elks Club. Mr. Hammerle talked on "School Expenditures" and pointed out that Xenia schools are short of funds this year. Following the talk each member present was presented a package which contained "poison" candy and small trinkets, to carry out the April fool effect. Officers will be elected at the next meeting and each member is requested to be present.

Mr. Ruth's career ends again . . . Has seen his greatest days . . . However . . . yet . . . still . . . maybe! These are just a few of the rumors which concern the great man as he starts South to begin his training, but no one—not even the Babe—can answer the question, "Will the fence buster" perform as per usual during the coming baseball season?

Gratz, field executive, will also be present. An interesting candle lighting ceremony will be a feature of the exercises. Scout laws will be defined by a group of twelve Wilmington Scouts.

ELECTRIC POWER OFF WEDNESDAY

Traction service was disrupted and Xenia was without lights for twenty minutes early Wednesday afternoon when electric power furnished by The Dayton Power and Light Co. was cut off. Interurban cars on the Dayton-Xenia Railway Co., between Dayton and Xenia and on the Springfield and Xenia system were thrown behind in their schedules.

VIOLETES TRAFFIC LAWS IS CLAIMED

Raymond Toner, 19, is being held in the County Jail on charges of operating an auto with improper license plates and improper lights, following his arrest Wednesday morning by Lawrence A. Davis, county road patrolman.

The offense is alleged to have taken place last March 2. Authorities say the car he was driving bore tags issued for another auto and that it displayed no tail light. The youth will probably be arraigned in Probate Court Thursday morning.

AUTO IS BURNED

Firemen responded to the nineteenth alarm of the year at 2:15 p. m. Wednesday when a coupe owned and driven by George Sass caught fire at Detroit and Church Sts. A short circuit caused the blaze. There was no damage, however.

Baseball Puzzlers

By CHARLEY BARRETT

Some of the college boys invent trick plays that are far fetched. I had occasion at one time to stop in and umpire a varsity game when the regular arbiter did not show and one of the coaches spotted me sitting in the grandstand.

One of the teams tipped me off to their particular trick play and told me to be on my toes when it turned up so that I would be sure to get it.

Their idea was for the catcher to fool the batter by taking him off watch in the following manner: With two strikes on the batter the catcher was to walk out of the pitcher's box, pat him on the back, loudly encourage him and return to his position. When a few steps away from his own box he would give a big leap, wheel in the air and the pitcher cut loose with a fast one down the middle. The idea was to get the batter to sleep.

Sure enough along about the middle of the game, with two on base, the pitcher managed to get two strikes on the batter. The catcher then trotted out to the hill when the pitcher stood on the rubber. He did this little act and walked slowly back toward the plate. Then he sprang into action, but the pitcher, over-anxious, cut loose a bit too soon.

That fast ball caught the pivoting catcher behind the ear and laid him out cold. The batter was fooled and took an awful cut at the ball, missing it completely. The ball rolled all the way to the gymnasium, and everyone scored, including the batter.

The coach insisted that I call time because the catcher was unconscious, but I was laughing too hard to tell him to look into the rule book.

"Hey, Bill!"

I don't know which cigarette this is, but it sure wins my vote!"

W. H. (Bill) McCord, of Post & McCord, steel contractors for New York's tallest skyscrapers, holds cigarette test with 94 workers.

Friend, you're smoking a certain cigarette today because you feel it's the best brand for you.

And maybe you're right. But have you ever really checked up? Ever said to Old Man Habit, "Now you step out of the room. I'm going to smoke the four leading brands with brand names forgotten and just let my taste say which one is best."

The other day one of these tests was made among the huskiest fellows in New York . . . those two-fisted chaps who work with steel girders, sky-high above the city streets.

Their own boss, Mr. W. H. McCord, was referee and score keeper. Each cigarette was "masked" and numbered. All Mr. McCord said was, "Tell me which one you like the best."

The result speaks for itself! 69 out of 94 men voted for OLD GOLD!

OLD GOLDS win time after time in these public tests, because smokers find them smoother and better . . . with not a cough in a carload.

AMERICAN AVIATOR WOULD MAKE FLIGHT TO WRANGLER ISLAND

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—An American aviator today awaited permission of United States authorities to make a flight from Alaska to Wrangler Island, the "land of death" far north of the Arctic Circle, so that he might carry cheer to a little Soviet colony that has been isolated three years.

Noel Wien, ace of the Arctic pilots, has made application for the permit and weather conditions for the 750 mile journey are ideal. United Press dispatches from Alaska realized, however, that his hazardous journey, a financial venture as well as one of mercy, might be delayed due to an international dispute that has been waged by the United States, England and Russia for many years, each claiming rights to the island.

Colonies established on Wrangler Island by Americans and British brought only death and suffering. Charles Wells, accompanied by thirteen Eskimos carried the American flag into the polar region and seemed about to succeed when he was evicted by a Soviet gunboat in 1924. He died of pneumonia short time later.

In 1921 a Canadian, Allan Crawford, son of a Toronto professor, aided by three citizens of the United States and Ada Blackjack, Eskimo seamstress, went to the territory north of the seventieth parallel but all perished except the woman. The Americans in the party were E. Loreme Knight, McMillan, Ore. Frederick Maurer, New Philadelphia, Ohio, and Milton Galld, New Braunfels, Texas.

Ada Blackjack was returned to Alaska by a rescue expedition headed by Capt. Harold Noyce in 1923. The main difficulty encountered by the early colonies was that their members could not survive the bitterly cold storms until they could build substantial houses.

This trouble was not encountered by the present group on the island, composed of Soviet trappers, according to John Borden, millionaire explorer, who sighted their small village during a cruise on his yacht in 1927, a year after they had established it.

Borden was unable to anchor his ship due to rough weather and consequently the story of how the Soviets conquered the frigid polar climate has become a mystery.

Wien recently answered a call for help from the Soviet provision ship Elsie, icebound off North Cape, Siberia, and flew over a round trip of 500 miles never traversed by air before so that the crew might have food and medicine. When he returned he brought $69,000 worth of furs from the vessel and it is anticipated the settlers of Wrangler Island have accumulated considerably more than this.

AIR MAIL POSTAGE BOOMS

CHICAGO, April 3.—Florida hotel visitors this winter bought more air mail stamps than regular postage, says the American Air Transport Association in reporting that air mail postage between Florida resorts and northern cities increased more than 50 per cent while the winter season was on. More than 400,000 letters were carried in February, representing 10,000 pounds of mail.

CHAPTER LIV

The day after Betty's experience with her father, she expected Andy to refer to it, but when she went for her usual morning's dictation he said nothing, so she decided he did not know of it.

Betty felt embarrassed about parts of the conversation, and decided not to mention it unless Andy did. It was a balmy spring day, and Betty felt little inclination for work. She did her letters and mooned at her desk between jobs.

Andy's work did not keep her busy much more than half the time, so she gathered up the trade papers and catalogues of various manufacturers with which they did business and familiarized herself with these during her leisure time. But today they lay untouched on her desk.

She had had no serious conversation with George Harris since ceasing to act as cashier in his restaurant during the dinner hour, but she always went there for breakfast and usually for dinner. George tried to favor her in her checks, but she was too well posted and insisted on paying the regular prices.

She resumed dancing practice, excusing herself on the grounds that she needed the exercise. In the past year her figure had rounded out and developed until no one would suppose of her as a thin, when found her unattractive.

She was not unconscious of this. On several occasions she had been compelled to freeze men who tried to flirt with her in the restaurant or on the street. She wondered if Andy still found her attractive.

She hoped he did. Frank with herself, she acknowledged she was in love with him, but was positively thoughtful of her as two different girls. One was the butterfly girl who danced at night clubs and rode with him until three o'clock in the morning; the other was his efficient secretary. It was the butterfly girl with whom he had been in love, and he had put her out of his life like the rest of the surroundings in which she had moved.

At this point in her meditations the buzzer sounded. Taking her notebook she went in and sat beside Andy's desk for dictation.

"Gee, I don't want to work today!" he began. "This is spring and daffodils, budding leaves and hookey in the air!"

"I know, I feel it, too," agreed Betty.

"Let's play hookey, then, and get out of it!"

"Wouldn't it be fun! But there are things to be sold and money to be made, and stern duty calls!" She poised her pencil over her book and waited.

"I haven't any letters," he said. "I just called you in here to talk to you."

"What about?"

"Nothing in particular, and everything in general. Are you through being sore at me? You were as high hat as a darkey preacher at first."

"Oh, I have gotten all over that!" laughed Betty.

"Perfectly happy in your job? Everything going all right?"

"Absolutely."

"When we are friends again?"

"Why, certainly!"

"Then I want you to go to dinner with me and for a ride afterward."

"Oh, Andy! Do you think that is wise?" She did not notice that she called him "Andy."

"We are both free, white, and twenty-one; at least I am. Can you think of any good reason why I shouldn't take you to dinner?"

"It isn't considered good form for a girl to go to dinner with her employer, is it?"

"Oh, that's all bunk! We'll go to some quiet place if you prefer, but I would rather go to one of the hotel restaurants. If any one sees us they will know we aren't trying to hide."

"You aren't ashamed to go out with me?"

"Nonsense! I'm going to take you from the office and make sure that everyone here knows I'm going to dinner with you!"

"No please! Come to my house at six-thirty. That will give me time to freshen up a bit and be a credit to you. Let's go some place where we can dance."

At seven o'clock they were at a roof garden eating, dancing and laughing joyously at nothing. In a grey coat and white flannels, Andy looked his best; Betty, in white from toe tip to hat crown, attractive the smiling admiration of many as they danced.

Betty had not enjoyed herself so much for a long time. Clapped in the night, Andy stopped on the gas and headed for the river road, their old parking place. Here he stopped and lighted a cigarette.

"Betty, I wonder if that automobile accident wasn't the best thing that ever happened to either of us?"

"I'm not sure it wasn't," agreed Betty. "I am better off since I got away from dancing. Perhaps it took something like that to make me stop."

"I needed it to bring me out short," said Andy. "I don't know what the fascination is, but that sort of a life seems to get you. You drift gradually until you are a gone goner. I am much happier working and with some object in life than I ever was then."

"I hardly need to tell you that I am."

"I always feel mean about your lying there in the hospital, thinking I had forsaken you!" He turned toward her, tossing his cigarette out of the window. "Will you do me a favor, Betty?"

"If I can, of course," she answered, readily.

"I would so much like to repay you all the money you spent in the hospital. It doesn't mean a lot to me. It would mean much to you. I shall always feel in your debt until I do."

"No, Andy, I can't. I like to feel independent. I wouldn't if I let you pay it. It wasn't your fault. You didn't do

"IN EIGHT WEEKS I GAINED TWENTY POUNDS," HE SAYS

Famous Konjola Went To Source of Ailments Lauds New Medicine.

"After suffering for two years from stomach trouble, Konjola quickly and surely restored my health so that I feel like a different person," said Mr. Steve Soberdash, 1622 Florence Ave., Youngstown.

"When I was nineteen years old

MR. STEVE SOBERDASH

I was extremely weak and lacking in strength and energy. I was unable to eat a meal without suffering intensely afterward from pains. This killed my appetite and I ate but very little. Still I suffered from gas bloating and acidity of my stomach. I experienced vomiting spells quite often.

"A friend recommended Konjola, and on his indorsement I decided to give it a trial. All my ailments vanished within eight weeks and have never returned. I have gained weight and am strong as any other young man. I eat whatever is placed before me, relish the food and am properly nourished. It is indeed a wonderful thing to be free of two years suffering, and I owe it all to Konjola. To me there can never be any other medicine like Konjola."

Konjola is different from any other known remedy in this section. It contains 22 juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and run-down systems have been restored to a new state of health thru this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product, until now, Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.

Konjola is sold in Xenia at the Gallaher Drug Store, and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section. —Adv.

He is also prominently connected with the Knights of Pythias and is head of the order in Ohio. Miss Porter is principal of one of the leading schools in Cincinnati and well-known as an educator.

This is a hard-water country

SOAP and hard water make scum. The hardness in the water combines with the soap. The scum collects dirt. There is a dirty ring around the dishpan, the washbub, the bathtub. But soften hard water with Melo and no scum forms.

Water softened with Melo is a wonderful cleaner, with or without soap. It makes the soap much more effective, too, saving from 1/3 to 1/2 the amount ordinarily used. Melo only costs 10 cents a can. You can afford to buy 3 cans and keep one in the kitchen, one in the laundry, and one in the bathroom. Get it at your grocer's.

WHY CUSTOM HATCH?
Here are a few reasons why you should let us Custom Hatch your eggs instead of setting your incubators or hens:

MODERN EQUIPMENT
Our incubators are strictly up-to-date in every respect. We keep them clean and sanitary. They are under constant supervision day and night. The automatic controls give an even temperature and humidity at all times.

HATCHABILITY
By keeping our incubators clean, sanitary and at the proper temperatures the hatchability of the eggs is high and the chicks are strong, healthy and vigorous. We fumigate our incubators with formalin gas three times during each hatch. This kills any germ that may be present and also prevents the spread of infection.

SERVICE
Chick hatching is our business, and with our modern equipment and the services of a college graduate who has had wide experience in the hatching and raising of baby chicks, we feel confident that we can custom hatch your eggs and assure you the best of results.

SATISFACTION
We make no charge for Custom Hatching if you are not satisfied.
